

and

Middlesex University and the German Historical Institute London cordially invite you to an evening colloquium on the occasion of the presentation of Sönke Neitzel's English edition of

Tapping Hitler's Generals, Transcripts of Secret Conversations 1942-45

(Frontline Books, London, MBI Publishing, St. Paul)

Between 1942 and 1945 the British Intelligence Service undertook an extraordinary surveillance operation. In the sedate surroundings of Trent Park, a large mansion with extensive grounds in North London, they used state of the art bugging equipment to listen in on the private conversations of captured high-ranking German officers. Unlike the countless post-war interrogations, these were informal conversations in which the officers spoke freely to one another and touched upon the most sensitive issues. The transcripts of these conversations, now published in English by Sönke Neitzel, reveal the officers' views on the progress of the war, and the direction of German politics and strategy. The officers discussed the July Plot of 1944, the failed attempt to assassinate Hitler, collaboration with the enemy, and their experience of German war crimes.

19 November 2007, 18.00 – 20.00

Venue: The Saloon, Mansion Building, Middlesex University,
Trent Park Campus, Bramley Road, London, N14 4YZ

Welcome by Melvyn Keyn, Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Middlesex University and Professor Andreas Gestrich, GHI London

Speeches by Professor Sir Ian Kershaw, University of Sheffield and Professor Sönke Neitzel, University of Mainz

followed by Q&A and a reception

RSVP

Janice Roscelli, Tel: 0208 411 6777, Email: j.roscelli@mdx.ac.uk

Please note seating limited

Location

The Saloon, Mansion Building, Middlesex University, Trent Park Campus, Bramley Road, London, N14 4YZ

Map

<http://www.mdx.ac.uk/campuses/campuses/tp/travel.asp>

Underground: The nearest tube station is Oakwood on the Piccadilly line. The University operates a free minibus service between Oakwood station and Trent Park. The service runs every fifteen minutes between 07.00 and 01.10 hours during term time. The bus stop for the minibus is to the left of the exit to Oakwood station, on the same side of the road.

The nearest national rail station is either Enfield Chase or New Barnet. From Enfield Chase you need to catch either the 121 or 307 bus from directly outside the station and alight at Oakwood underground station. From New Barnet you will need to catch the 307 bus from the station to the bus stop opposite Oakwood underground station.

Bus: You can catch the 121, 307 or 377 bus to outside Oakwood underground station. university bus from Oakwood Station (Piccadilly line) to Trent Park campus ever 15 minutes.